The residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Poore was the scene of a pretty home wedding June 19, when Miss Jessie M. Poore and Mr. Rudolph C. Worch were married by Rev. Father Roccofort. The ceremony took place beneath a bower of daisies, ferns, white flowers and paims. A curtain of daisies and asparagus vines was caught with large bunches of the white flowers. The bride was gowned in white taffeta trimmed with satin ribbons and carried bride's roses. She wore diamond earrings, the gift of the groom. The maid of honor, Miss Mannie Smith, wore white organdle with satin ribbons and carried La France roses. Mr. A. B. Gawler was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Worch received many beautiful presents, and, after hearty congratulations from friends, left for their future home mid showers of rice.

The report contained some sharp criticisms of the work of the excise board, and the charge was made that eleven applications for license, filed in November last, are still pending, while the applicants are now engaged in the liquor business, as though they had official permission. The question arose as to how long the board could defer action, and the inference was that if the applications could be pigeonholed for eight months they could be finally disposed of favorably to the liquor dealer in this way. Certain alleged cases were cited where, it was said, the people to YOU'LL whom licenses were finally granted had bad records. It was shown that the excise board March 2 last reported to Congress that 715 applicants had obtained licenses, yet the report of the internal revenue bureau showed that up to the same date 1,017 special tax stamps had been issued to residents of the District.

In a brief speech Dr. Wilson showed what a great task was before the league, in consideration of the wealth and strength of the liquor interests. He pointed out that each member should assume the personal responsibility of keeping the saloon out of his own neighborhood.

The financial standing of the league was set forth in the annual report of the treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Gillenwater, who showed that only twenty-five of the lifty-seven participating societies contribute to the expenses of the organization. Last year the sum given by them was $238, which was brought up to $360 by other contributions. The disbursements aggregated $422.98, thus creating a slight deliciency, for which extra subscriptions have been pledged.

Rev. Dr. Hamilia urged the league to keep firing ball cartridges at the saloons and not to fire at random. There was danger in loose work, and the speaker pointed out the difference between the German beer garden and the French wine room on the one hand, and the American saloon on the other. He deplored the use of ill-considered epithets against hotels, and cited a case where a speaker had referred to a highly respectable hostelry as a "rum hole," when, in fact, it was equipped with no bar at all.

Rev. Dr. Power, pastor of Garfield Memorial Church, and chaplain of the league, spoke with severity of the clubs of the city, composed of men who pass as the druggists and owners of the steamboats. He declared that 109 houses of ill-repute are now selling liquor without a license within sight of the Executive Mansion.

During the evening touching reference was made to the sad death of young Mr. C. E. Snell, who was drowned Saturday, one of the most enthusiastic workers for temperance in the Dist
